Title: Timothy Leary papers

Date: 1910-2009

Size: 265.67 linear feet (610 boxes, 11 oversized folders, 22 tubes). 1.78 gigabytes (4043 computer files, 56 disk images)

Source: Purchased from the Futique Trust, 2011.

Revision History: Series XII. Library added to finding aid

Abstract: Timothy Francis Leary, Jr. (1920-1996), a psychologist and writer, became known as an advocate for the use of psychedelic drugs and a counterculture icon. The Timothy Leary papers contain records created and accumulated by Leary over his entire life, as well estate records created after his death. The papers comprehensively document his life and activities: as a child, student, professional psychologist, lecturer and researcher at Harvard, unaffiliated psychedelic guru, prisoner, escapee, exile, and futurist.

Conditions Governing Access:
Electronic Records are available for onsite use only. Electronic records in unknown or unreadable file formats are closed until proper emulation or migration solutions can be determined. Audio and video recordings are unavailable pending preservation transfer. Some of these materials were previously digitized and are available through the Internet Archive's Timothy Leary Archive: "https://archive.org/details/Tim_Leary_Archive".

Conditions Governing Use: Copyright for material created by Leary retained by the Futique Trust.

Language of the Material: English

Processing note: Compiled by Jennifer Ulrich, 2013When possible folders in which material arrived at the Library were retained. The floppy and hard drive disks were forensically imaged for preservation. The textual documents from these images were migrated in order to create a full-text keyword searchable index. Additionally, named entity extraction algorithms were run on the migrated documents to identify personal, organizational, and location names contained within them.

Creator History

Timothy Francis Leary, Jr. (1920-1996), a psychologist and writer, became known as an advocate for the use of psychedelic drugs and a counterculture icon.

Timothy Leary was born in Springfield, Massachusetts to Timothy and Abigail (neé Ferris). He attended Springfield Classical High School and graduated in 1938. His college education and military career overlapped. Leary had enrolled at the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1940 only to resign that same year. He subsequently enrolled at the University of Alabama and soon after enlisted in the United States Army. During his time in the army, Leary was suspended while continuing to receive training through the Army Specialized Training Program (ASTP) at Ohio State University. He was reinstated in fall 1944 and married his first wife Marianne Busch. Several months later, he graduated from the University of Alabama with a B.A. in Psychology. Leary went on to receive a M.S. in Psychology from Washington State University and a Ph.D. in that same subject from the University of California at Berkeley in 1950. While finishing his doctorate, he and Marianne had two children, Susan (b. 1947) and Jack (b.1949).

For most of the 1950s, Timothy Leary worked as a psychologist in several capacities. He was part of the Department of Psychology at the Kaiser Hospital in Oakland; Director of Psychiatric Research at the Kaiser Foundation; assistant professor at the University of California, San Francisco; and a consultant for Edward Glaser & Associates. His research from this time period resulted in his first published book, Interpersonal Diagnosis of Personality (1957). During this period Leary's personal life was turbulent. His first wife, Marianne, committed suicide in 1955. One year later, Leary married Mary Della Cioppa. Leary finished out the decade by living in Italy and Spain with his children.

In 1960, Leary was named a lecturer at Harvard University at its Center for Personality Research. In this capacity, Leary brought a newly realized interest in researching and analyzing the effects of psilocybin mushrooms on human subjects. At Harvard, Leary and his associates, notably Richard Alpert (later known as Ram Dass), began a research program known as the Harvard Psilocybin Project. Their subjects included students, prisoners, and, through connections formed via Allen Ginsberg, intellectuals and artists. After receiving the appropriate doses, participants in these various studies were given psychological tests and wrote essays detailing their experiences. Notable participants included Richard Alpert, Jack Kerouac, Ralph Metzner, Aldous Huxley, and Allen Ginsberg. Leary, Alpert, and their colleagues reported their findings via academic papers and lectures.

Leary was dismissed from Harvard in 1963. The same year, Leary founded the Internal Foundation for Internal Freedom or IFIF. The purpose of the organization was to establish a series of research centers in which studies involving psychedelic drugs would be conducted. Information about the research was published in its official newsletter, The Psychedelic Review. Originally based at the Hotel Catalina in Mexico, they soon wore out their welcome in Mexico. In 1964, the organization returned to the United States and moved into an estate owned by the Mellon heirs, Peggy, Billy and Tommy Hitchcock, in Millbrook, New York. Here, the IFIF was replaced by a new organization known as the Castalia Foundation. This organization's purpose, among other things, was "to disseminate scientific information resulting from research into states of consciousness…and the results obtaining [sic] from an alteration of the state of consciousness." To achieve this, the foundation offered lectures, psychedelic drug sessions, and other mind-expanding events. During this time, Leary co-authored The Psychedelic Experience: A Manual Based on the Tibetan Book of the Dead with Ralph Metzner and Richard Alpert. Leary also met and married his third wife, Nena Von Schlebrügge.

Between 1965 and 1968, Timothy Leary was arrested twice for possession of marijuana. Within that time, he established two new organizations. The League for Spiritual Discovery or LSD was formed as a replacement for the Castalia Foundation and professed itself to be an "orthodox psychedelic religion." In addition to establishing a reading room and meditation center in the West Village, Leary and his associates in the group toured the country promoting the organization and presenting "Psychedelic Celebrations" which mimicked the effects of hallucinogens for the audience. The second organization was a response to the initial arrest and was called the Timothy Leary Defense Fund: Committee for the Reform of Marijuana Legislation (TLDF). The purpose of TLDF was to raise awareness about drug laws and to bring attention to Leary's legal troubles. Initially, LSD had some administrative control of the organization. Leary married Rosemary Woodruff in 1967.

Despite a court case which successfully proved the unconstitutionality of The Marijuana Tax Act (Leary v. United States), Leary was incarcerated at the California State Prison in February 1970. He wrote and published Jail Notes at this time. By September, he had escaped and fled to Algeria where he stayed with Eldridge Cleaver. Traveling in Switzerland, Leary met Joanna Harcourt-Smith and separated from Rosemary. He was apprehended in Kabul and sent to Folsom Prison to serve the rest of his sentence. While incarcerated, Leary wrote Neurologic Written in Prison, Starseed Written in Prison, Confessions of a Hope Fiend, and Terra II. As Leary served his prison term, Harcourt-Smith operated the Starseed Information Center which served to publish Leary's writings as well as raise support for Leary's cause. He had many friends and colleagues who were sympathetic to his situation like Allen Ginsberg, Ken Kesey, Lawrence Ferlinghetti, and other members of the San Francisco Bay Area Prose Poets' Phalanx.

In 1976, Timothy Leary was released from prison and he married Barbara Chase two years later. Over the next two decades, he continued to be a prolific author publishing essays, articles, and books such as The Intelligence Agents, Changing My Mind among Others, and The Game of Life which was co-authored with Robert Anton Wilson. He was also an active speaker, delivering lectures throughout the United States and internationally. His status as a symbol of countercultural life made him a popular choice for roles in television and film.

Leary founded Futique, Inc. in 1982 in order to give him a platform from which he could advance his interest in computer and technology-focused projects. In this capacity, he collaborated with software companies such as Interplay, Electronic Arts, and The XOR Corporation to create games, educational courseware, and programs. The most prominent was a video game based on the William Gibson novel Neuromancer. His writings at this time reflect this interest in cyberculture. Chaos & Cyber Culture and Surfing the Conscious Nets were published in 1994 and 1995, respectively.

Leary was diagnosed with cancer in 1995 and used this as an opportunity to explore post-death possibilities, such as cryogenics. He also established the Futique Trust whose purpose was to administer his estate, manage his archives, and collect and distribute his royalties to the appropriate parties. Timothy Leary died on May 31, 1996.

Scope and Content Note

The Timothy Leary papers contain records created and accumulated by Leary over his entire life, as well estate records created after his death. The papers comprehensively document his life and activities: as a child, student, professional psychologist, lecturer and researcher at Harvard, unaffiliated psychedelic guru, prisoner, escapee, exile, and futurist.

His papers also provide insight into the lives of the many individuals and organizations with which he interacted and the countercultural milieus in which he operated. Given Leary's important roles in psychological and psychedelic research, the counterculture of the 1960s, the escalation of drug use and drug law enforcement in the 1960s and 1970s, and the emerging cyberculture of the late 1980s and early 1990s, his papers also yield traces of key historical transitions and phenomenon in post-war 20th century America.

The archive includes nearly every conceivable type of paper record (including correspondence, manuscripts, and printed material), as well as sound recordings and videos, electronic records (textual and executable files), and artifacts. His papers are arranged into eleven series. The first six represent distinct periods in Leary's life: I. 1917-1938; II. 1938-1950; III. 1950-1960; IV. 1960-1976; V. 1976-1996; VI. 1996-2011. Series seven through eleven represent record genres and formats: VII. Clipping Files; VIII. Audio and Video Recordings; IX. Photographs; X. Artifacts; and XI. Posters and Art.

The transitions between the phases of Leary's life represented by each of the first six series were marked by significant changes in Leary's situation and were often accompanied by a physical relocation or dislocation. Therefore, the records from each of these periods remain relatively discrete. However, given the persistence of some of Leary's activities and projects and his manner of keeping his archive, there are documents and files in some series dating outside the date range of its series title.

The first two series are relatively small, and consist in large part of records Leary probably acquired later in his life, most likely from his mother and other relatives. Series III and IV cover Leary's professional life, and contain many relatively well-ordered groups of files created by Leary and his colleagues during their academic and experimental studies. This order was somewhat compromised by Leary's frequent moves throughout the 1960s and 1970s, his legal troubles, his exile, and imprisonment. Ironically, it is the records he created and accumulated during the most stable period of his life, when he spent 20 years in Los Angeles, that present the greatest challenges for the researcher. During these years, Leary involved himself in dozens of projects concurrently, many never fully realized. He generated an enormous amount of correspondence, notes and drafts, plans, clippings, legal files, and research and background materials. Meanwhile, he remained a magnet for many people-known and unknown to him and the world at large-seeking his blessing, advice, or contribution to their cause or project. As a result, he was sent thousands of unsolicited invitations, prospectuses, manuscripts, brochures, magazines, books, and letters. Moreover, Leary seems to have retained everything he generated and accumulated throughout this period, though his record-keeping was sporadic and very often done retrospectively by his friends and colleagues.

In arranging and describing Leary's papers, NYPL staff made every effort to keep files and filing systems intact when they seemed to have been created by Leary, his colleagues, or those helping him later in his life to organize his archives. However, this approach was not always followed for several reasons. First, many files were used, titled, and sometimes reused, but did not obviously belong into any discernible filing system. Second, many files or groups of files seemed to mirror other aggregations or individual files. Third, a significant amount of material arrived unfoldered or in folders with no meaningful labels. Last, Leary, his friends, and associates often rearranged material within the papers. Sometimes Leary drew from his own archives, such as when he was writing his memoir Flashbacks. At other times, however, idiosyncratic categories were established and material relocated in attempts to organize or even commodify the archive.

For these reasons NYPL staff sometimes created new aggregations of files arranged chronologically, alphabetically, or by form or genre; combined similar filing systems and files into larger accumulations; and refiled material whenever possible when it was removed from its original context into an unusual and not altogether useful category such as "gems."

Series I: 1917-1939 1910-1956 (2 boxes)

Papers in this series document Leary's life from birth through high school, including his childhood, education at Saint Michael's School and the Classical High School, and attendance of Camp Norwich in Massachusetts. These records include letters he sent to his parents while at camp, school work and records, a scrapbook of jokes, his baby book, printed ephemera, photographs, and a copy of Leary's high school newspaper, which he edited.
The military records, letters, and photographs (dating from 1917 to 1956) of Timothy Leary's father primarily document his time in the Army Dental Corps and as a Merchant Marine.
Additional family photographs and albums from this time period may be found in Series IX: Photographs

Series II: 1938-1950 1938-1969 (7.5 boxes)

This series spans the years Leary studied as an undergraduate and graduate student, attended West Point, and served in the United States Armed Forces. The files identified as General Academic records span institutions and include diplomas, transcripts, essays, and unidentified schoolwork. Other records are filed by institution.
College of the Holy Cross records contain essays, printed ephemera, academic records, and correspondence. The bulk of the records in this series document Leary's time at the United States Military Academy at West Point. These records include extensive correspondence with his mother, in which Leary describes his experience at the Academy and his disciplinary problems. Other records from this period consist of writings, programs, coursework, requisitions and reports, memorabilia and ephemera, and publications. The papers from his time at the University of Alabama are primarily correspondence.
Leary's training in Personnel Psychology during his service in the Army is documented in the Army Specialized Training Program (ASTP) records. The army files also hold his Officer Candidate School application, records documenting his hearing loss, financial records, writings, and printed ephemera. Leary and his then girlfriend Marianne Busch took Rorschach tests, the results of which are with the writings. Leary's Master's thesis and doctoral dissertation are in the Washington State University and University of California, Berkeley files respectively.

Series III: 1950-1960 1921-1973 (17 boxes)

Leary spent the 1950s in California as an assistant professor, psychiatric researcher, practicing psychologist, and consultant.
Records in this series document Leary's personal and professional life from his receiving a Ph.D. in psychology in 1950 up until his appointment at Harvard University in 1960. It is arranged in three subseries: Personal, Professional, and Writings.
Personal files document family life, travels, and Marianne's death, as well as Leary's subsequent relationship with Mary Della Cioppa. These files also include material created by Leary's wife, Marianne, and their children, Susan and Jack.
Professional files document his work at Berkeley, Edward Glaser & Associates, and Kaiser Hospital in Oakland, California. Files consist of therapy session transcripts; research papers, notes, data, and drafts; psychological tests; and samples of his Interpersonal Checklist booklet and forms. These files also data for a study Leary conducted with Merton Gill at Kaiser Permanente over several years.
Writings consist of notes, a diary (not Leary's), and drafts, including one of Leary's book The Interpersonal Diagnosis of Personality: A functional theory and methodology of personality evaluation.

Series IV: 1960-1976 1950-1995 (132 boxes, 1 oversize folder)

Between 1960 and 1976, Leary was appointed as a Lecturer at Harvard's Center for Personality Research and conducted his most famous studies; was dismissed from Harvard; founded other organizations based in Mexico and then Millbrook, New York, to continue his psychedelic research; was arrested twice for possession of marijuana; founded the Timothy Leary Defense Fund; married Nena von Schlebrügge and Rosemary Woodruff; ran for Governor of California; was incarcerated at the California State Prison from which he escaped and fled to Algeria; met Joanna Harcourt-Smith in Switzerland and separated from Rosemary; was apprehended in Kabul and sent to Folsom Prison; and wrote several books and articles. It is during this period that Leary became a public figure-notorious, controversial, and an icon for certain strains of the emerging counterculture.
The records in this series were generated by Leary's activities from his appointment at Harvard until his release from prison in 1976. The series has been arranged into eleven subseries.
The first four subseries (IV.A. though IV.D.) contain records generated during Leary's work under the auspices of Harvard, Internal Foundation for Internal Freedom (IFIF), Castalia Foundation, and the League for Spiritual Discovery (LSD). Except for Harvard, Leary helped establish each of these organizations; each were founded to continue the work of the previous organization, so the division of each organization's work and records is not completely distinct.
The Timothy Leary Defense Fund was formed in 1966 shortly after Leary's first arrest for marijuana possession. Fund records (subseries IV.E.) represent the efforts of Leary's friends, colleagues, and supporters to build a legal case on Leary's behalf, as well as instigate a broader review of the drug laws then in place. The Exile subseries (IV.F.) contains records produced while Leary was a fugitive living in Algeria and Switzerland. The Starseed Information Center records (IV.G.) reflect its purposes: to publish Leary's writings and advocated for his cause, primarily during his second prison term from 1973 to 1976. Starseed was primarily administered by Joanna Harcourt-Smith.
The Name Files (IV.H.) and General Correspondence (IV.I.) were groups of files established by Leary. They each include material that span the entire time frame covered by the series. The Writings subseries (IV.J.) consists of drafts, notes, and other material related to particular books, articles, subjects, or ideas. The Personal and Legal files (IV.K.) are an amalgamation of otherwise unsorted files relating to Leary's personal life and legal issues during the entire period, and includes his writings and correspondence from both of his stints in prison.
Generally, writings and correspondence connected directly with the institutions or distinct time periods represented by subseries are filed within those subseries, though researchers should also thoroughly check the subseries that span the entire period (IV.H-IV.K) when researching any particular event or phase in Leary's activities.

IV.A.Harvard 1957-1967 (21 boxes)

Harvard files consist of academic papers written or co-written by Leary, appointment books, newsletters, and correspondence with colleagues and individuals interested in his research. The correspondence is arranged chronologically with some individuals listed alphabetically, like William S. Burroughs, Richard Alpert, Aldous Huxley, and Allen Ginsberg. Leary and colleague Richard Alpert's travels to conferences in Copenhagen, Denmark are documented with itineraries and airplane tickets, letters, notes, and printed ephemera. Records generated by the Harvard Psilocybin Project and the Concord Prison Project, as well as other studies and projects, include administrative reports, correspondence, session reports, psychological tests, internal memoranda, minutes, and notes. Additional correspondence regarding research projects may be found in the Harvard correspondence files within this subseries.

IV.E. Timothy Leary Defense Fund 1965-1968 (3.5 boxes)
The Timothy Leary Defense Fund (TLDF) was formed in 1966 shortly after Leary's first arrest for marijuana possession. Fund records document the efforts of Leary's friends, colleagues, and supporters to build a legal case on Leary's behalf, as well as instigate a broader review of the drug laws then in place. The TLDF obtained signatures and donations for its "Declaration of Principle" supporting Leary's legal defense "to use marijuana in religious, scientific or personal pursuits" on constitutional grounds. The TLDF efforts included distributing petitions and press releases, forming chapters and committees, and establishing the National Marijuana Committee. Carole Mann, Charles C. Rumsey, Jr., Larry Bogart, and Jean Mayo were the administrators. The records consist of correspondence, form letters, committee files, mailing lists, and publicity-related files.

IV.G. Starseed 1964-1982 (16 boxes)
This subseries consists of records documenting the management of Starseed Information Center, Starseed-administered events, and Starseed publications. There are benefit files, financial records, research files, press releases, and publishing files. These records reflect the central role played by Joanna Harcourt-Smith (who often referred to herself as Joanna Leary, although the two were never legally married) in directing Starseed during Leary's imprisonment. Writings related to Starseed can be found in subseries IV.J. Other Starseed mateial can be found in Series V.

IV.H. Name Files 1950-1974 (6 boxes, 1 oversize folder)

"Name Files" were files Leary kept on individuals; they may hold correspondence, poetry, notes, and other writings. The files include poems by Allen Ginsberg; notes and correspondence with Nena Leary (aka Nena von Schlebrügge) documenting their marriage and trip to India; a certificate and scroll commemorating his marriage to Rosemary Woodruff, as well as correspondence with many notable and important figures in Leary's circle, including Richard Alpert, Walter Houston Clark, Michael Hollingshead, Laura Huxley, Art Kleps, Paul Krassner, Charles Mingus, Huston Smith, and Alan Watts. This subseries is arranged alphabetically by last name.

IV.I. Correspondence 1963-1969 (26 boxes)

The Correspondence is a group of files established and maintained by Leary that spans nearly the entire time frame covered by the series, and includes letters he sent and received during his prison terms. Similar correspondence is located throughout each of the other subseries, though the preponderance of the general correspondence is with Leary as an individual, while the correspondence with organizations he founded and worked for are filed with the records relating to those organizations. Most of the subseries consists of incoming letters from family members, professional colleagues, LSD users, students writing research papers, and friends. Other documents are interspersed with the letters, including "self-remembering score cards," signs used at Millbrook, Castalia summer school documents, and financial records.

IV.J. Writings 1960-1995 (29.5 boxes)

This series consists of work written or co-written by Leary in the form of drafts, annotated proofs, essays, letters to editors, research files, interviews, and notes. There are also writings within the other subseries. Leary often renamed articles and books in progress and worked on them over time. Therefore, some of the files here represent earlier versions of works that were sometimes, but not always, fully realized later under a different title. Published books represented by drafts and research files include High Priest, The Psychedelic Experience, and Psychedelic Prayers after the Tao T Ching. Interview files consist of transcripts, outlines, and notes.

IV.K. Personal and Legal Files 1960-1980s (8 boxes)

The Personal and Legal files are an amalgamation of otherwise unsorted files relating to Leary's personal life and legal issues from 1960 to 1976. Court records; declassified records; files concerning legal fees and representation, parole, probation, and clemency; and contracts document Leary's long-standing legal issues. These files also include astrology charts for Jack, Susan, and Timothy Leary, several scrapbooks, and a file on Leary's campaign for Governor of California.

Series V: 1976-1996 1946-2008 (311 boxes, 20 tubes, 3 oversize folders, 1 item, 58.78 Megabytes (3,607 computer files, 56 disk images))

The largest series in Leary's papers, Series V contains the records he produced and accumulated during the last twenty years of his life, from his release from prison in 1976 until his death in 1996.

Series V documents Leary's career as a writer and public speaker; his intermittent career as an actor; his business ventures, including Futique, Inc.; and his relationships with software companies with whom he collaborated, such as Interplay, Electronic Arts, and XOR Corporation. This series also traces Leary's association with scholars and organizations, such as Joseph Banks Rhine, (founder of the parapsychology lab at Duke University), Neil Freer, John C. Lilly, The L-5 Society, and Esalen Institute. Writings, correspondence, and a wide-variety of printed material and ephemera represent Leary's exploration of the various, but related, topics on which he focused throughout this period, including transhumanism, futurism, space migration, cyberculture, virtual reality, intelligence increase and life extension, personal freedom and self-realization, and, in his final years, cryonics and "designer death."

Correspondents include a wide variety of friends and colleagues in the entertainment, publishing, software, and art worlds, such as Larry Flynt, G. Gordon Liddy, Danny Sugarman, Helmut Newton, Bob Cuccione, Jr., Tony Scott, Keith Haring, Spike Jonze, David Byrne, Robert Anton Wilson, Cheech Marin, and Joi Ito.

This series is organized into eight subseries: Correspondence, Chronological Files, Alphabetical Files, Writings, Financial Records, Legal Files, Family Files, and "Countercultural Files." It contains a wide variety of paper material, including letters, manuscripts, printed material, contracts, calendars, posters, business cards, photographs, and artwork. The electronic records consist of textual documents-such as letters and writings-and executable software.

These subseries were established by a combination of identifying and maintaining files and filing systems created by Leary and his associates, aggregating these files and systems into larger groups to facilitate use of the records, filing unsorted material when it was possible, and establishing new groups to accommodate unsorted materials and files not easily associated with other groups of files. More than in any other period, many of these records arrived at the Library unsorted, unidentified, and even unfoldered.

Several attempts were made by Leary and his associates to review and organize his archives during his life, especially during the 1990s. These attempts were never fully realized, and were sometimes based on somewhat idiosyncratic categories and methodologies. When these systems were applied over a large body of material-such as in the so-called Countercultural Files-they were retained.

There is a considerable overlap in the time periods and activities documented within the various subseries, especially between Correspondence, Chronological Files, Alphabetical Files, and Writings. Therefore, researchers with an interest in particular people and projects from this time in Leary's life are advised to scrutinize each subseries as a potential source.

Some of Leary's projects continued work begun before 1976. Therefore, some related material can be located in Series IV. Some files contain material predating the time span of this series; this is a product of Leary and his collaborators mining his own archives for material relevant to a given project or interest he was pursuing during this time.

V.A. Correspondence 1968-1996 (44.5 boxes, 201 Kilobytes (36 computer files))

There are four groupings of correspondence: Chronological, Incoming, Outgoing, and Alphabetical. Most of the letters by Leary from the 1980s onward are printed copies of letters he wrote on his computer, which he often signed and possibly faxed and retained for his files. Letters with particular individuals can be found in multiple groups (for instance, within chronological and alphabetical groups) and in other subseries (such as chronological or alphabetical files).
Chronological correspondence comprises a combination of previously unsorted letters, groups of correspondence foldered and named by Leary (e.g., business letters), and materially sorted roughly by Leary's friends and associates trying to organize his archives in the 1990s.
The correspondence is mostly incoming "business letters." Letters by Leary as well as incoming letters sometimes have enclosures, such as writings. Correspondents include Tony Scott, Vicki Marshall, Eric Gardner, Joanna Harcourt-Smith, and Tom Robbins.
Much of the business-related correspondence complements the other subseries, especially the Alphabetical Files and Chronological Files which, during certain periods, are comprised primarily of correspondence very similar in nature.
Incoming letters include holiday cards and a distinct assembly of fan mail. Fan mail, of which there is a discrete gathering here, is scattered throughout the papers. The Alphabetical correspondence is a mixture of personal and professional letters.
Letters previously separated as "gems" were either reintegrated within the correspondence or kept with Series VI.

V.B. Chronological Files 1970-1996 (63 boxes, 13.46 Megabytes (1,710 computer files))

Chronological Files consist of notes, printed matter, business correspondence, and related material for particular periods, in files either created by Leary and his associates or NYPL archival staff. Many of the files in this subseries are rich in correspondence and are virtually indistinguishable from correspondence files in subseries V.A. These files also include electronic records, mostly textual, from disks containing digital files relating to various projects. (Disks containing records relating to a single project are described in the Alphabetical Files under the project name. Disks containing digital files related to Leary's work on a variety of software projects are grouped under Software Development in the Alphabetical Files.)
In addition to correspondence, these files may contain contracts, travel itineraries and receipts, notes, clippings, greeting cards, photographs, business cards, posters, tickets, printed ephemera, brochures and programs for workshops and events, printed material, manuscripts, clippings, invitations to art exhibits and parties, messages, and notes.

V.C. Alphabetical Files 1953-2000 (49 boxes, 19 tubes, 3 oversize folders, 31.79 Megabytes (658 computer files, 56 disk images).)

Alphabetical files are arranged by the title given to them by Leary and his associates or a title supplied during processing by NYPL archival staff to accommodate previously unsorted material. The files represent records generated during work on particular projects; files containing material by, to, or about people or companies with whom Leary collaborated or hoped to collaborate; subject files of material accumulated by Leary as background research; and files representing formats or types of materials such as posters, calendars, or electronic records whose content spans the time periods, projects, and general substance of other identified files. These records reflect the broad range of Leary's activities and interest during the last 20 years of his life, notably his work in computing and with leaders in the emerging cyberculture. File titles are often idiosyncratic and the files themselves incomplete; they are often complemented by material from nearly all the other subseries in this series. Researchers with an interest in particular people and projects during this time are advised to scrutinize each subseries as a potential source.

This subseries contains a large volume of electronic records. Disks containing digital files related to Leary's work on Software Development are grouped under that heading. Disks containing digital files produced during work on particular projects, are listed alphabetically by project title, and include executable software. Those disks containing digital files related to multiple projects are described in the Chronological Files subseries. As in the case with all of Leary's papers, digital files in more general groups include material related to more specifically named projects.

Some files contain material predating the time span of this series; this is a product of Leary and his collaborators mining his own archives for material relevant to a given project or interest he was pursuing during this time.

SKIPI 1983-1985 (721 Kilobytes (36 computer files))
SKIPI, an acronym used for both Super Knowledge Information Processing Intelligence and Super Knowledge Information Processing Interface, was an early software project by Leary. SKIPI was designed to be the underlying engine for Leary's various software projects, where users gain psychological insight about themselves through rating how they felt about ideas or people. The SKIPI software became the basis for his commercially released program, Mind Mirror, and was intended to be used in his Very Highly Interactive texts (Huck Finn,) and Mind Movies (Neuromancer, Glass Bead Game), none of which were ever realized for commercial release.

V.D. Writings 1960-2008 (104.5 boxes, 1 tube, 1.73 Gigabytes (243 computer files))

This subseries includes Leary's paper and electronic drafts, notes, fragments, and other material related to published and unpublished articles, monographs, software products, screeplays, and websites.

Files arranged alphabetically by title make up the bulk of the subseries. Most of these files are drafts of his monographs, particularly Flashbacks, The Game of Life, and What Does Woman Want? Material for particular works often became mixed into files for other works. Titles of works often changed or were reused for subsequent projects. For these reasons, Leary's writings present a particular challenge: anyone wishing to thoroughly investigate a particular work or the development of a particular Learyian motif, will almost certainly need to explore beyond the most obviously titled files.

Untitled writings are those filed in folders that lack explicit tiles given to them by Leary, though the work therein can often be associated with related writings.

The screenplays were given to or collected by Timothy and Barbara Leary and are arranged alphabetically by author's name. Scripts include a proposed biopic "Flashbacks," written by Bima Stagg, and "Easy Rider 2" coauthored by Michael O'Donoghue, Nelson Lyon and Terry Southern.

Notes are lists, reminders, names and phone numbers, and ideas. Business and rolodex cards are interspersed throughout the notes. Some notes were later annotated by Leary with additional notes.

Works by Others comprise manuscripts, drafts, and pushed versions of articles, essays, poetry, academic papers, newsletters, scripts, and other writings collected by, collaborated on, or sent to Leary for his consideration. The bulk of this material arrived at the Library unsorted. Authors include Zalman Schachter, Paul Williams, John Perry Barlow, James Bauer, Diana Di Prima, Michael Hollingshead, Peter Stafford, Aldous Huxley, Jeffrey S. Young, Brian Barritt, Bruce Ehrlich, Jean Millay, Paul H. Cutting Jr., William Gibson, Bob Guccione, Jr., and Chuck Russell.

V.H. "Countercultural Files" 1980-1995 (38.5 boxes)

This subseries contains printed ephemera collected, received, maintained, and filed chronologically by Leary, his family, and associates. Included are invitations and flyers for clubs, shows, movie premieres, gallery openings, and performances in the Los Angeles area, as well as promotional material for events, books, and performances with which Leary was directly involved. They named these files the "Countercultural Files." Similar material is prevalent throughout this series, especially in the Chronological and Alphabetical files.

Series VI: 1996-2011 1934-2009 (26.5 boxes, 2 tubes, 1.73 Gigabytes (436 computer files))

Leary established the Futique Trust to administer his estate, collect royalties, distribute dividends and other income to survivors, and manage his archives in anticipation of his death. In 1996, Les Klinger of Kopple and Klinger was chosen to represent the Leary Estate and Futique Trust. This series contains founding documents for the Trust, Trustee's reports, Leary's will, financial records, royalty statements, contracts, and other material generated by the administration of the Trust. There is also material documenting the arrangement and management of Leary's archives and intellectual property, consisting of inventories, appraisals and sales done by Butterfield & Butterfield, Christie's Auction House, and Sotheby's; correspondence regarding the ownership of Leary's art and estate; and statements recording his residuals and assets.
Items selected for possible duplication, research, or auction by people working with Leary on his archives were labeled "Gems" (1936-1990s).The bulk of the Gems are letters from notable correspondents such as Allan Ginsberg, Walter Houston Clark, Richard Alpert/Ram Dass, and Ralph Metzner during Leary's experiments with psychedelic drugs, but they also include materials from earlier in his life. Several files are from a "book of famous letters." Other notable correspondents include Abbie Hoffman, Carl Sagan (1974), Yoko Ono, and Ken Kesey. Gem files that were pulled intact from an earlier filing systems have been refiled, as is the case with session reports and Harvard correspondence files. (As time and resources are available, the Library will (re)file these items in their original or appropriate files.)
Programs, correspondence and other material documents memorials and reunions hosted by Trust members. The Trust records also include records generated in the course of negotiations regarding the motion picture rights for Flashbacks, publishing deals, and work with other Leary-associated companies, such as the agency Panacea and the web design firm Retinalogic.
Files titled Timothy Leary include legal documents and writings. Manuscripts by other authors include a memoir by Rosemary Woodruff (1997).

Series VII: Clipping Files 1953-1997 (27 boxes)

This series contains newspaper and magazine clippings, some annotated, organized and titled by Leary under topical and chronological headings. Numbers found on folders and items correspond to an organizational scheme not maintained by Leary even as he continued adding to the files. These files complement those found in the Alphabetical Files subseries in Series V. The files reveal Leary's wide variety of interests-in computers, politics, sports, religion, for instance-though the bulk of the files are drug-related.

Series XI: Posters and Art 1960-1996 (7 boxes, 3 oversize folders, 17 tubes, 1 item)

This series is comprised of art produced during the 1960s through the 1990s in a variety of media, including pen, pencil, marker, crayon, watercolor, collage, charcoal, and computer art. The series also includes reproductions. Much of the art was inscribed by the artists and often sent to Leary unsolicited as fan mail of sorts. Leary signed some art himself, in keeping with his habit of inscribing many of the things sent to him by friends, family, and fans. Though most of the artists are unidentified or not widely known, this series also includes the work of well-known figures like Howard Hallis, Keith Haring, Eileen Getty, and Brummbaer, all of whom Leary collaborated with. Some of the art speaks to Leary's relationships with the artists; for example, the series contains Howard Hallis's artwork from Surfing the Conscious Nets, a book for which Leary wrote the text. The art is primarily psychedelic or is otherwise abstract in nature, though there are portraits, anime art, and a variety of other styles. Several pieces of art, including art by Howard Hallis, Brummbaer, and Carolyn Ferris, feature Timothy Leary's likeness.
